

Privacy Policy

How is the information that I provide in my user account used?

At a minimum, a HarrisburgNightlife user account consists of a username, e-mail address and password. This information is required to create an account. This information will never be shared with or sold to anyone. It is used solely by this web site for the purposes of identifying you on repeat visits,

Does HarrisburgNightlife collect any information automatically and how is that information used?

At the current time, the only information that is collected automatically upon a visit to HarrisburgNightlife is purely of an aggregated, statistical nature. This information is used to analyze traffic patterns on the site and referral information. No information that personally identifies a specific visitor is collected.

Does HarrisburgNightlife use cookies and if so, how?

HarrisburgNightlife does use cookies to help identify a user for the duration of a visit to the site. Cookies are small pieces of information that are placed on the user's computer in order to assist the site in identifying that user. With the help of cookies, a user is asked to log into the site only once per session. After a session ends (i.e. the browser window is closed) or the user elects to logout using the link on the home page, the cookie is destroyed, unless the user chooses to stay logged in at this particular computer. This protects the user from someone accessing their account from a computer that they have used previously. Cookies are used only as a convenience feature for the user and are not used to collect personal or session information from the user or their computer.

HarrisburgNightlife may change this Privacy Statement without notice from time to time. Please visit this page often for updates and changes.
